Palms to Cross to New Life

As our Lenten pilgrimage comes to an end this year, we enter one more time into the mystery of the death and resurrection of Jesus. There are so many places in the story that invite us in - to imagine the joy, sorrow, and confusion of those days. Where do you find yourself standing this year? Jesus approaches Jerusalem and there is a buzz in the city and the crowds gather. Cloaks are thrown into the street to line the path to David's royal city. Palm branches wave in the air as the people greet the one they hope will become king. Stand with the crowds and shout Hosanna on Palm Sunday. What do you hope for? What do you long for? Who do you look to as a leader? Some people, including some of the disciples, thought that Jesus becoming King would be a good thing, a solution, to years of oppression and occupation. Who today doesn't take that line at times, "If people would only follow Jesus, everything would be ok." What do you think?

Days after Jesus comes to Jerusalem, there is another energy in the city. Jesus has been arrested, and people gather outside the fortress of the Roman Governor. If Jesus won't put up a fight- maybe the resistance leader Barabbas will. "Give us Barabbas," the people cry. And we cry out with them. We lend our voices to the wisdom of the crowd. How often today do we continue to follow the crowd and forget that Jesus leads in a new way. The crowds follow Jesus to the hill where he is hung on the cross, and then melt away. Where do we turn when death and pain surround us? Jesus dies and his body is sealed in a hole in the ground. We all know the pain of broken expectations, the past few years have sometimes seemed like a never-ending series of plans and cancelations. The hopes and dreams that lifted the hearts of the people on Palm Sunday, were pierced and deflated. The crowd will always find something new to follow. How do we linger in the midst of our grief and be open to the reality of the brokenness around us? Do we stay at the foot of the cross, or walk away?

Easter morning breaks with confusing news: the tomb is empty! As we celebrate the resurrection this year, we remember that Jesus meets us on the way. Jesus seeks out the ones who walked away from the cross and headed home to Emmaus. Jesus entered the locked room and offered himself to other gathered disciples. Jesus is alive and offers that new life to us. How do we respond to the gift of new life in Christ Jesus this year? First and foremost, we give thanks to God for God's faithfulness and love that continues to be poured out on us today. The Living Christ is seen in the face of our neighbors and we continue to serve Christ in what we say and do. In the midst of our joy, sorrow, and confusion Jesus offers a word of assurance: I will be with you always.

Happy Easter.
Pastor Erik Weber

Discernment Process among South Central North Dakota ELCA Congregations

Overview

The Planning Team is in the middle of months that focus on communication and developing options for the eight congregations.

Half the planning team members are on the Presentation and Listening Team. They have travelled in groups to visit each congregation. Their purpose is to share what was heard during the January/February listening sessions. They will also continue to listen to how each congregation responds to the topics and concerns raised by other congregations. Each congregation has been visited once by this team.

The other half of the planning team members are on the Options Team. They will use the information shared in the listening sessions to develop a set of options that will be presented to the congregations. After additional feedback, they will refine the options. Following a meeting of both teams on March 15, it was decided to direct additional time and efforts into developing additional viable options. To allow time for this work, the timeline for second visits from the Presentation and Listening Team has been adjusted.

Adjusted Timeline

January 16-February 10—Video presentation and initial listening sessions with each congregation

February 16—March 20— Presentation and Listening Team visits each congregation

March 16—April 19—All Planning Team members working on developing multiple viable options

April 20—May 18—First set of Options will be presented to each congregation for feedback

May 20—June—Refined options and a recommendation from the Planning Team will be presented to each congregation. Congregations will be asked to decide whether or not to continue as they are or to accept the recommended option(s) and begin implementing those plans.

Next Steps

When dates are announced for visits from the Presentation and Listening Team, please plan to participate. Expect the next opportunities to be after Easter.

(con't from page 8—Discernment Process)

Every option being developed will share these core values:

- Jesus Christ calls these congregations to be in mission in our communities
- Relationships within and among congregations are important
- Joy for volunteers, participants and staff will sustain this model
- Communication within and among congregations is essential

Legacy Planning Seminar

There comes a time...

As the author of Ecclesiastes tells us, “there is a time for every purpose under heaven.” There is a time to collect and build up, and a time to tear down and cast away. Sooner or later the time comes when you no longer need all that you have built and collected.

There comes a time when you no longer need the house you once lived in. There comes a time when that vacation home or winter retreat is no longer the source of refuge and recreation it once was. There comes a time when the kids and grandkids decide they don’t want the family farm, business or cabin. There comes a time when you realize your retirement savings will likely outlive you.

When that time comes, what will happen next?

Being prepared is important if you want your life’s work to still have meaning and purpose even when the time comes to let it go. Having a good strong plan in place will be essential to passing along not only your wealth and possessions, but the story of who you were and what was most important to you.

Will you leave it to chance, or will you have a plan?

Many people don’t think they need a plan. They think a few verbal instructions or a simple will covers things. They underestimate the complexity of what happens after you die. Without a proper plan you can leave your loved ones with a rat’s nest of details to be sorted out. And if a clear plan is not in place it is likely that the courts will have to get involved (probate), causing more delays, more work for your heirs, and more costs.
